i. Honors and Awards

Recently elected as an officer on the Nominating Committee for the International Professional Organization American Association for the History of Nursing (AAHN) in a very competitive election. My term of office begins in September 2023, and runs until 2025. The election was held May-June 2023.

Selected by Caroline Mahowald as her Laureate Mentor. This honor allowed me to hood Caroline at the May 12, 2023, Honors Laureate Ceremony.

Nominated by students Madison Lilley and Reyna Diaz for the Clark Society Endowed Faculty Award (Spring, 2022). This award recognizes faculty that prioritize engagement with students.

Nominated by Mechayla Cox for the Clark Society Endowed Faculty Award (Fall, 2022). This award recognizes faculty that prioritize engagement with students.

Faculty Senate: nominated and voted on by a group of my peers to represent Harris College on the Faculty Senate from Fall 2022-Fall 2024.

The December 2021 graduating class voted for another colleague and I to represent as their Faculty Marshal for their pinning ceremony. This honor allows for another colleague and I to lead the graduating class into the ceremony and escort them up as they receive their nursing pin.

Awarded the Young Alumna Award for East Texas Baptist University (ETBU) in October of 2021. As the Young Alumnus Award recipient, I had to be a graduate of ETBU within the last twenty years. I had to exhibit outstanding achievement in my field of service since graduating from the university, must possess outstanding character and reflect favorably on the university.

Awarded the Ruth Eloise Sperry Teaching Award in the Spring of 2021. This is an award that is awarded based on a vote by the Senior I and Senior II nursing students. This award was in Endowed in 1976, named after Ms. Sperry in recognition of teaching excellence in both classroom and clinical.

I was one of 10 contributors featured in the TCU magazine faculty roundtable. Winter 2020 edition. I discussed: How does empathy show up in the way you teach?

Faculty Senate: nominated and voted on by a group of my peers to represent Harris College on the Faculty Senate from Fall 2020-Fall 2022.

I was voted as Faculty Marshal for pinning ceremony in the Fall of 2019; by the December 2019 graduating class. This honor allows for another colleague and I to lead the graduating class into the ceremony and escort them up as they receive their nursing pin.

Adjunct Faculty-Assistant Professor (Spring 2019-ongoing)
University of North Texas Health Sciences Center (UNTHSC) Seniors Assisting in Geriatrics Education (SAGE). This is an extended education program with TCU and UNT Health Sciences Center. As adjunct faculty, I am able to see the students visits with their older adult mentor, grade all submitted work to ensure it meets guidelines and to ensure participation from all students. Through SAGE, the students are able to gain early exposure to the older adult population. The students are a part of an interdisciplinary teams, which includes nursing, physician assistants, physical therapy, pharmacy, social work, and dietetics. Not only are the students able to gain early exposure to the older adult population, but they are also a part of a diverse team. The students are then graded on different assignments based on their visits with the older adult. Some of those assignments include but not limited to blood pressure checks, physical exam, nutritional assessment, home safety assessment, cognitive assessment, and medical overview.
